

Congratulations on the 110th Anniversary of the founding of Tsinghua University. As one of the first universities to be founded in modern China, and now one of the highest ranked universities in China, Tsinghua continues to play a unique role in both national and international academic life. At The University of Manchester, we are proud to partner with world leading scientists at Tsinghua in areas such as industrial biotechnology, exploring sustainable alternatives to the finite resources used in manufacture and furthering innovation and knowledge for the benefit of China and the UK.
